1. In the spring of 1950, the number of Hungarian counties (megye) was reduced from 38 to 19.
2. As far as it can be ascertained, the administration of the police has been reorganized according to the new county arrangement. Accordingly, a county seat is also the headquarters of the police force for the same county; likewise, the geographical locations of district (járás) managements and district police headquarters coincide.
3. There has been no change in the autonomous position of the municipal government and police of Budapest. For example, the police of Pest county, as hitherto, have no jurisdiction over the citizens of the Hungarian capital.
4. The 19 counties and their administrative seats are as follows:
